Clark, Mary Higgins.           Two Little Girls in Blue.

Twin three-year-old girls are kidnapped and one reputedly murdered, even when her sister is ransomed, but little Kathy keeps insisting to Mom that Kelly is somewhere, crying for her. (April 06).

Evanovich, Janet.           Motor Mouth.

Metro Girl Alexandra “Barney” Barnaby returns for a second romp, this time with NASCAR roaring in the background. (March 06).

Hannah, Kristin.           Magic Hour.

Julia puts her heart into aiding trouble children, so she’s devastated when she’s forced to give up her practice. Then she connects with a mute little girl who’s been abandoned – and the doctor fighting to protect her. (March 06).

Jance, J.A. & Others.           Bark M for Murder.

A quartet of canine crime stories by Jance, Virginia Lanier, Chassie West, and Lee Charles Kelley. (March 06).

Kellerman, Jonathan.           Gone.

The abduction of two art students turns out to have been faked, but the murder that follows is very real, and Alex Delaware tries to figure it all out. (April 06).

Parker, Robert.           Sea Change.

This time, the sea brings Paradise, MA, police chief Jesse Stone the decomposing body of a divorced heiress who had a penchant for naughty sex in front of the camera. Alas, no one seems to care that she’s dead, but that doesn’t stop the investigation. (March 06).

Robards, Karen.           Vanished.

Ten years after the disappearance of six-year-old Lexie, her mom gets a call from someone who sounds exactly like her daughter. (April 06).

Ross, Ann B.           Miss Julia Stands Her Ground.

Heavens! Brother Vernon Pluckett blows into town with what he claims is solid proof that Little Lloyd is not the son of Miss Julia’s cheatin’ (and now dead) husband. (April 06).

Woods, Stuart.           Dark Harbor.

Did Stone Barrington’s cousin Dick Stone – an unassuming man who happened to work for the CIA-really kill himself and his wife and daughter? Barrington thinks not. (April 06).
